

Prime accommodation with a perfect location

Surrounded by relaxed and idyllic scenery by the seafront of Southern Norway, just outside of Kristiansand, Skudeviga is the perfect overnight destination for both families and businesses.

Being new and modern while also preserving the classical design of Southern Norwegian architecture and the area's hospitality, Skudeviga is an extraordinarily popular tourist destination during the summer. It does, however, also offer accommodation for businesses working in the area throughout the year.

"It's actually quite ideal as we're based a 10-15 minute drive from Kristiansand town centre, as well as a zoo and golf courses, yet the soothing surroundings are still ever present," says general manager at Skudeviga, Birger Bjellås.

Pleasantly placed by the seafront of the famous Kristiansand archipelagos, Skudeviga is known for its outstanding offer for accommodating visiting companies.

"Commonly companies hired in to do business in the area for a certain amount of time appreciate our services, particularly considering our location and the tranquillity, along with the number of different accommodation offers available, depending on group size," Bjellås explains.

Visitors can choose between panorama flats overlooking Oksøy lighthouse and holiday houses equipped like Norwegian houses and with the classical Southern Norwegian architectural style.

"Also available is our one-of-a-kind skipperhouse, built just like the charming houses from generations ago," Bjellås says.

During the busiest summer months Skudeviga is tremendously popular amongst tourists as, with its location and scenery, it is a perfect holiday destination. For the same reason, it is also perfect all year around.

The uniqueness of personalised jewellery

Her jewellery can be bought in over 100 stores worldwide, and she makes all of her products herself – by hand. From her workshop in Lillesand, in southern Norway, goldsmith and jewellery designer Trine Wilhelmine Rønnevig creates the pinnacle of personalised jewellery.

With over 25 years of experience making jewellery, Wilhelmine uses silver as the dominant feature and adds to it with special stones, pearls and crystals, as well as producing customised products if the customer wants something special.

"Stones can have a force and clarity, and I can find stones perfect for the customer and then make a personalised piece of jewellery from them," Wilhelmine says.

Necklaces, bracelets, earrings and rings are all hand-made by Wilhelmine, whose work has become recognised worldwide, leading to exports to both Tokyo and New York. "Despite being very social, I enjoy working alone; I manage to do a vast amount of multitasking and I love my work," she explains.

"It's important to be proud of what I produce, and one of the main challenges is to follow the fashion development whilst simultaneously expressing myself through the work," Wilhelmine describes.

The products can be adapted to match personality, and the unique charms are made in Lillesand, where the shop is easily accessible, with exceptional personalised service.

"If the shop is closed, I have an emergency phone number for those who suddenly need something special for someone special or a particular event; it is occasionally very busy, particularly around Christmas," she laughs.
